Public Protection – Specialist Noise Officer

Building for the Future

Hammersmith & Fulham prides itself on being a great place to work as well as one of London’s most compassionate and caring councils. We have an exciting opportunity for experienced officers who are keen to make a difference. Our team’s highly varied workload focuses on delivering efficient, effective and fast outcomes for residents using a range of digital services, whilst working alongside our colleagues in Planning, Building Control, Housing, Highways and Licensing Teams and other front-line partners.

Self-development is central for the team with access to a wide range of e-learning tools. For the right candidate, we can offer opportunities through our linked career progression scheme as well as support for those wishing to develop into management positions.

As a Public Protection Specialist Noise officer, you will be a key part of a team offering support and direction to officers to manage a caseload right through to its conclusion. You will be providing professional and technical advice whilst reviewing and responding to planning applications and S61 consents, some of which are at the forefront of complex major developments, such as HS2, Thames Tideway, Olympia and Earls Court, as well as opportunities to work overtime and, where needed, outside of normal working hours.

A good knowledge of the relevant legislation and experience of dealing with developers is essential as well as having excellent communication skills. You will have an Environmental Health degree/Acoustics Diploma. You will have a flexible approach, be self-motivated and adept at problem solving.

A full valid driving licence is essential
